Bansode, NSS Coordinator at St. Wilfred's Arts, Commerce, and Science College, gave the speech. "Nukkad Natak Beti Bachao Beti Padhao" is a poignant street play aimed at fostering awareness and action towards the "Beti Bachao Beti Padhao" initiative, an Indian government campaign advocating for the empowerment and education of girls. Set in a typical Indian neighborhood, the play unfolds with the birth of a girl child, met with disappointment and disapproval from family members, showcasing the prevailing gender bias and discrimination against girls. Throughout the performance, the characters engage in dialogues and dramatic sequences that challenge societal norms and stereotypes. They highlight instances of girls excelling in various fields, breaking stereotypes and proving their capabilities. The play also addresses pressing issues such as child marriage, female feticide, and unequal access to opportunities faced by girls, compelling the audience to reflect on their attitudes and behaviors towards gender equality. The Nukkad Natak culminates with the characters pledging their support for the Beti Bachao Beti Padhao initiative, vowing to work towards creating a society where every girl has the opportunity to thrive. The impact of the play is profound, as it raises awareness, influences attitudes, and encourages community engagement in promoting gender equality. workshops, seminars, and training sessions designed to promote positive attitudes towards road safety. These activities emphasize the importance of patience, courtesy, and respect for fellow road users, aiming to create a culture of responsible driving and mutual respect on the roads.

Event Summary	NSS & Student Development Cell organized a Tree Plantation Day on February 19, 2020 for III year students. It was delivered by Mr. B.S. Bansode, NSS Coordinator, St Wilfred's College of Arts, Commerce and Science. A First Aid Training Session is a structured educational program designed to equip individuals with the knowledge, skills, and confidence to provide immediate assistance in emergency situations where someone is injured or becomes ill. These sessions are typically conducted by trained professionals such as paramedics, nurses, or certified first aid instructors and are essential for anyone who may find themselves in a position to administer first aid. The session begins with an introduction to the importance of first aid, emphasizing the critical role it plays in saving lives, preventing further injury or illness, and promoting recovery. Participants are briefed on legal considerations surrounding first aid, including their duty to act and the limitations of their training. Next, the training covers the primary objectives of first aid, which include assessing the situation, ensuring personal safety, summoning professional help if necessary, and providing appropriate care until help arrives. Participants learn how to assess the scene for potential hazards and how to prioritize care based on the severity of injuries or conditions. The training then delves into specific first aid techniques and procedures for common emergencies, including: CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation): Participants learn how to recognize cardiac arrest, perform chest compressions, and administer rescue breaths. to maintain blood flow and oxygenation until advanced medical care arrives.

Choking: Techniques for clearing airway obstructions in conscious and unconscious individuals are demonstrated, emphasizing the importance of prompt intervention.

Bleeding and Wound Care: Participants are taught how to control bleeding using direct pressure, elevation, and the application of bandages or tourniquets, while also addressing wound care to prevent infection.

Burns: First aid for thermal, chemical, and electrical burns is covered, including appropriate wound care and management of pain and shock.

Fractures and Sprains: Techniques for immobilizing and supporting injured limbs are taught, along with guidelines for recognizing and managing signs of fractures and sprains.

Throughout the session, participants engage in hands-on practice and simulations to reinforce learning and build confidence in their ability to respond effectively in emergency situations. The training concludes with a review of key concepts, resources for further learning, and a discussion on the importance of maintaining first aid skills through regular practice and refresher courses. By the end of the session, participants are prepared to provide timely and appropriate first aid assistance when needed, potentially saving lives and reducing the severity of injuries or illnesses.
