7.1.3 Quality Audits on Environment and Energy Regularly undertaken by the institution

The goal of St. Wilfred College of Arts, Commerce, and Science is to maintain the highest levels of energy efficiency and environmental sustainability on campus. The institution conducts routine quality audits in these areas to make sure that these requirements are upheld.

An extensive evaluation of the institution's environmental performance, including its effects on waste management, energy consumption, and the quality of the air and water, is provided by the environmental quality audit. A group of specialists carrying out this audit assess the organization's adherence to industry best practices and environmental laws. The audit findings are used to pinpoint areas in need of development and to create plans for lessening the environmental impact of the organization.

Regular energy audits are also conducted by St. Wilfred College of Arts, Commerce, and Science in addition to the environmental quality audit. The purpose of these audits is to find ways to lower energy expenses and increase energy efficiency on campus. In addition to evaluating the effectiveness of the institution's energy systems and equipment, the audits usually include a thorough investigation of the energy usage patterns of the organization. The institution creates an energy management plan that specifies certain steps to be taken to lower energy use and expenses based on the audit's findings.

Additionally, the organization consistently tracks and reports on its energy and environmental performance. This involves monitoring its energy use, waste production, water use, and greenhouse gas emissions. The information gathered is utilized to spot patterns, establish goals, and monitor advancement toward attaining sustainability objectives.
